Open Campus

"Open Campus is our right," said one Newton North student. "It's hard to imagine Newton North High School without a movie or discussion going on in the Film Lecture Hall."

Open Campus allows students to plan their own free periods. They can choose to do homework for their next class, have a conference with a teacher, watch a movie, listen to a visiting speaker, go to Newtonville for a sub, or just sit on the library steps and talk with their friends.

Along with the freedom Open Campus offers comes the students' responsibility of disciplining themselves. They must learn to manage their free time so that after graduating from Newton North they can easily adapt to an unstructured environment.

The program has greatly expanded since it began eight years ago. Students enjoy the liberties it offers them and work for Open Campus' continued success.

Richard Mechem, Principal

In January of 1977, Mr. Mechem took his first leave of absence from the high school. The New England Association of Schools and Colleges, contracted by the State Department to organize a project reviewing the operation of the overseas American schools, appointed Mr. Mechem as director.

After accepting the job, Mr. Mechem spent two weeks planning the trip and an additional four weeks visiting the State Department in Washington D.C. and other offices in the United States that support the overseas schools.

He flew to Europe, for a period of three and one-half weeks, travelling through Stockholm, Moscow, Belgrade, Rome, Madrid and London. When he was not observing schools, he toured through the cities and saw many famous sights.

Within four weeks after his return to the United States, he had written up and submitted the final report of the project to the State Department.

Upon re-entering NNHS for the 1977-1978 year, Mr. Mechem felt refreshed and happy to be back.

Atwood P. Dunham, Assistant to the Principal

Atwood P. Dunham, North's assistant to the principal, is generally said to have "the worst job in the whole school." He is the man most responsible for the day to day running of Newton North.

His numerous responsibilities include: scheduling, transportation, field trips, the Daily Bulletin, special schedules, senior failures, visitors, a sophomore math class, school public relations, emergencies, and verification of the MPA. He also helps with Graduation and the closing of school, registration, cafeteria supervision, and the compiling of the school course booklet "Opportunities."

Mr. Dunham's biggest accomplishment this year was the institution of Rainbow Scheduling, a system acknowledged by all to be a great improvement over the former system of computer scheduling.

Fortunately, Mr. Dunham's background and experience prepared him well for the manifold responsibilities and computer work involved in his job. Born in Brockton, he attended Phillips Andover Academy and Wesleyan University, then went to Boston University for his Masters Degree, and back to Wesleyan for a certificate of advanced study in mathematics. He came to Newton North fourteen years ago, and taught for six years before becoming assistant to the principal.

As for the future, when he has time to think about it, Mr. Dunham plans to continue in administrative work for some time and then perhaps to finish his career by returning to the classroom.

Murray Road

Murray Road is based on a radical philosophy of education. It's a school not run by "them;" obscured figures in the system, but by "us;" the students and teachers currently involved in the school.

In general meetings, where everyone has an equal voice, the year's schedule, class choices and other decisions affecting the whole school are discussed and decided. Within classes, curriculum is planned and implemented by students and teachers. This includes choosing books, leading discussions, assigning homework and planning field-trips.

At the end of each term, students write evaluations of their progress within each class, their personal effect on the class as well as the class itself. There are no grades. Instead, these evaluations coupled with teacher evaluations help to give an in-depth picture of the student.

Learning to work with people like and unlike oneself, as this process demands, is one of the most exciting and challenging elements of Murray Road. In addition, though 68 students and 6 teachers may sound like a small number, in reality, 74 individuals present a large and diverse group of people.

Does this sound Utopian? At Murray Road the emphasis is on people, and, since human beings are not perfect neither is Murray Road. We have our problems, although at Murray Road students and teachers work together in an effort to help everyone discover and meet his own goals.

Students and teachers are also encouraged to initiate change within the school. This year Murray Road had a new structure call Focus. This change was developed by students and adapted by the school. During the afternoons, the school divided into focus groups in which each concentrated on one topic and studied it in many different ways. The structure of Focus allowed for use of community resources that included many speakers and field-trips.

One focus group created this year studied politics and law. One student, on a related project, spoke to the governor who then decided to establish Dec. 6, 1977 as Murray Road Day. This was in recognition of Murray Road as the longest-running public alternative school in the country.

TRANSITION

The senior year is one of transition for the student. It is in this year that he moves from the relatively sheltered life of an adolescent, a member of a family and a high-school student, to the world of adulthood, independence, and work or higher education. Each of these roles will make much greater demands upon his ability to make productive decisions and upon his assumption of personal responsibility.

Transition, Newton North's alternative senior program, was designed to help students learn "experientially," to help them develop a sense of responsibility and to enable them to deal with problems through direct experience, at the same time that they continue to learn academically.

During the first semester, Transition students spent every A and B block in the Transition room, 4692, with the two Transition founders/teachers, Mike Morris and Ron Boucher. Most of the time was spent in group meetings, in which students shared experiences, discussed various aspects of sociology, psychology and history, and generally prepared themselves for the trials and challenges of the second semester.

Transition is almost exclusively funded by the students in the program. In order to raise these funds, Transition students organized several profitable fund-raising programs, including a flea-market and the now traditional Transition store on Main Street. This year the students organized a Political Action committee, to make Transition a cohesive force in the crucial School Committee elections.

The second semester, in which the students were involved full-time in Transition, was divided into four modules, each a month long: the Social Service module, the Urban module, the Occupation module, and the Wilderness module.

During the Social Service module, students spent their time working for such organizations as the Medford State Hospital for the mentally ill, OXFAM-World Hunger, the Cambridge Head Start Program and Mass. Advocacy. Although they had to work within the general framework of Social Service, students were free to choose the type of service and the organization that most interested them.

The Urban module consisted of supervised field experience in the city of Boston. It helped the students to understand cities; the relationship between them and their suburbs, the workings of their governments, the interrelationships of their "parts", and their value as cultural and esthetic entities. Since many students will probably spend the majority of their lives in urban areas, such training is truly invaluable.

The Occupation module helped bring into focus what most students realize only vaguely; that one of the most important functions of education is to prepare the student for his future occupation. During the Occupation module, students chose occupations that interested them and gained first-hand knowledge of these fields through actual work experience. Students chose occupational areas as disparate as farming, journalism, carpentry and college-level teaching.

The culmination of the Transition year was the Wilderness module, a twelve day trip through the Allegash Wilderness in Northern Maine. The students underwent extensive training to prepare for an expedition that included canoe-skills, training at Walden Pond, and camping skills training at the Blue Hills. Transition students also prepared for the voyage by going on numerous smaller trips throughout the year, such as a survival weekend on a Cape Cod island and a winter hike on Plum Island. The Wilderness trip was designed, among other things, to help students appreciate the glory and the majesty of the wilderness. It helped the individual students to increase his self-confidence and sense of personal worth by confronting circumstances in which he had to deal with his own strengths and weaknesses in order to accomplish crucial tasks and overcome obstacles.

In the four years since its inception, Transition has become a well established part of the Newton North program. It has given students an opportunity to escape from the stagnation of Senior life into the warmth and excitement of group "meshing" and personal challenge. This year's Transition students declare that the program has provided them with one of the most rewarding, beneficial and educational experiences of their lives. Transition reflects well the flexibility and the brand of realistic idealism that marks Newton North, the enthusiasm and vigor of its students, and the creativity, organizational powers and the vision of its teachers.

Crucible

The Shakespearean Players' performance of The Crucible was one of the best plays ever presented at NNHS. Produced by student Michael Kharfen and directed by English teacher, Tom DePeter, the play captivately drew the audience into the lives of the people of Salem.

Terrified and paralyzed by the powers of the bewitching Abigail Williams, played by Katy Powell, and the wrath of Reverend Samuel Parris, played by Michael Kharfen, the audience could only watch as the good name of Elizabeth Proctor, played by Elizabeth McNary, and John Proctor, played by Philip Wolf, was slowly destroyed.

When Mary Warren, played by Lucia Sanchez, testified that the dancing and chanting of the girls in the woods "was only a pretense," hope was restored. But it was abandoned again when Mary "changed her mind" and swore that John Proctor had forced her to testify so that his wife would not be condemned as a witch.

The obstinate Deputy Governor Danforth, played by Scott Reilly, refused to be swayed by the pleas of Reverend John Hale, played by Dan Coggins, and the audience left in tears as John Proctor was unjustly accused of and hung for selling his soul to the devil.

FANNY

This year's school musical, Fanny, was one a little less known than those performed before. Both a comedy and love story in one, it kept the audience going from side-splitting laughter to tears.

When Marius, played by Chris Giron, chooses between his love for Fanny and his desire to go to sea, Fanny, played by Felicia Sanchez, is left behind, heartbroken.

She soon discovers that not only did Marius abandon her, but he left her pregnant. Fanny's mother, Honorine, played by Lisa Stone, tells her that the only solution is to marry Panisse, a rich businessman played by Peter Atlas.

Panisse is quite willing to marry Fanny, especially when he discovers that she is pregnant and in marrying her he will finally have the son he has always wanted.

Marius' father, Cesar, played by Jim Kaufman, vehemently opposes the marriage, having wanted Fanny to marry Marius. When Panisse tells Cesar that he and Fanny are going to have a baby and "a seven month baby at that," Cesar realizes the situation Marius has left Fanny in and tells her he will send for him.

Fanny's hopes are dashed when Panisse agrees to name the baby after Cesar if Cesar will forget about sending for Marius.

On the baby's first birthday Marius returns. He tells Fanny he was mistaken. The sea was not his true love; while he was away he only thought of her. Fanny is torn between her love for Marius and her desire to protect the welfare of the baby. Cesar discovers them together and turns Marius out.

The years pass and Cesario, played by Pam Caslowitz, develops a yearning for the sea and with the help of the admiral, played by Michael Kharfen, who drew Marius to sea, Cesario sneaks away to see Marius and tries to convince Marius to take him to sea.

When Panisse discovers his son gone he has a heart attack. He is on his death bed when Marius brings Cesario home. Before dying, Panisse has Cesar write a letter to Marius in which he tells Marius to marry Fanny and to take care of his child.

STORY THEATRE

Crows, fish, geese and wolves flocked about the Little Theater January 26, 27 and 28 when a cast of 19 acted out and improvised "Story Theatre," a play by Paul Sills. The play, written by the son of the creator of improvisation, was directed by teacher Tom DePeter and produced by senior Michael Kharfen. "Story Theatre" was unlike any other play performed at North. The cast took turns acting out eleven children's tales such as "Henny Penny," "The Fisherman and His Wife" and "Rumpelstiltskin."

The play demanded much from the actors who were on stage singing, acting, and producing sound effects throughout the entire play. "Story Theatre" was a test of each actor's ability to act and improvise and each gave an entertaining and outstanding performance. The cast members were: Peter Atlas, Linda Berman, Debby Boskin, Adam Chinitz, Dan Coggins, Tom DePeter, James Dolbear, Chris Giron, Roxanne Gobach, Michael Kharfen, Elizabeth McNary, Katy Powell, Billy Ryan, Lucia Sanchez, Lisa Shatz, Lisa Stone, Olga Sucu, Steven Weingarten and Phillip Wolf. Susan Sanders did the lighting.

VOCALISTS

The 42 students lucky enough to be accepted into The Family Singers — the group generally acknowledged to be a collection of the finest singers in the school — were also lucky enough to enjoy a year of highly successful concerts, tours, and other choral activities.

The year began with the Strauss Ball, where Family, Concert Choir and Brothers and Sisters sang and danced. Director and coordinator Raymond Smith organized several concerts throughout the school year, including Winterfest in March, during which the Concert Choir sang the famous Requiem by Maurice Durufle.

The climax of the vocalist's year came in April, when they traveled to Baltimore and to Washington D.C. for a series of concerts, and then were visited in turn by the Baltimore High School Choir.

In order to bring the group to the attention of future high school vocalists, the Family sang in several junior highs, enjoying the same success as they did at North and on their various concert tours.

The Brothers and Sisters are to the Family what the Boston Pops are to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Under the expert guidance and coaching of Saul Stern, arranger, conductor, and director extraordinaire, the singing and dancing pop music group completed another fun, successful year of concerts and tours.

INSTRUMENTALISTS

There were two wind groups this year: Wind Ensemble, which plays specialized music, and Concert Band, which plays a more general repertoire.

The orchestra was composed of approximately 75 players — 35 winds from the Wind Ensemble and 40 strings from the String Ensemble.

The year opened with The Strauss Ball on November 9. The Concert Choir, Orchestra, Family Singers, and Sisters participated in this tremendously successful evening. Music from the Strauss period was played, such as waltzes and polkas.

On November 14, there was an instrumental evening, including the wind ensemble, the jazz ensemble, concert band and orchestra.

Two solo concerts, one the evening of January 18 and the other on the afternoon of January 31, featured student soloists, the Wind Ensemble and the Orchestra.

In March, there was a tour in Washington D.C. for the instrumental groups. The tour gave concerts at various high schools en route.

Also in March, the Winterfest took place. Newton North's orchestra and Concert Choir combined with South's orchestra and chorus to perform Durufle's Requiem.

The year concluded with the Pops concert in May. This included all the music groups in combination with other art forms.

On the whole, it was a tremendously successful year — one of the best ever experienced.

WORK TO RULE CANCELS CLUB AND ACADEMIC TRIPS

by Howle Safran and Phillip Corcoran

Continuation of work to rule would cause the cancellation of field trips taken outside of school hours with unpaid advisors and also take a toll on night classes at Murray Road.

Under work to rule guidelines, various clubs' field trips and all other school related academic trips taken outside of regular school hours since the strike are not allowed, according to Richard Dunham.

work to rule is stopped, according to Italian club president Anna DeFazio.

Mr. John D'Agnese, advisor to the French club, doesn't think that the annual trip during April will be cancelled this year. "We haven't scheduled the trip mid-April--by then the work to rule and the contract disputes should be resolved," he said.

"Work to rule has substantially limited our academic program at Murray Road," he said.

There are also night courses taught at Murray Road by teachers. "We have night courses there," he said.

"Night courses ranging from Renaissance history to math were a very important part of Murray Road and comprised a major part of the students' schedules there," he said.

Last year 38 students took courses during the evening including about half the Murray Road students, according to Mr. Dunham.

"These night classes also gave other students a chance to take courses which they couldn't fit in their regular schedules," he said.

One source of annoyance is the faltering bell system here. It rings too early, too late or not at all.

"The bells are rung by an automatic I.B.M. system in the main office's master clock," said administrator John Reichard.

"Usually, when the bell rings, it's a problem with the technical-vocational department here, but when it's a serious problem, we have to call in a representative from I.B.M.," he said.

Many of the paper are John Reichard, News Editor; Philip Corcoran, News Analysis Editor; Carrie Bernstein, Feature Editor; and Charlie Slack, Sports Editor.

"I generally go by the clock. If the bell rings, it rings, but the class isn't over until the clock says so," he said.

"It's distracting to teachers and students to have the bell ring," said Mr. Dunham. "It's also annoying for a student to sit in a class for a few minutes after a bell has already rung."

THE NEWTONITE is the Newton North High School newspaper. It was founded in 1922 in order to cover all school related events and student opinions within our Newton North community.

Among the Newtonite staff are the Editor-in-chief, Chris Nash, and the Managing Editor, Nancy Vetstein. The four page editors are John Reichard, News Editor; Philip Corcoran, News Analysis Editor; Carrie Bernstein, Feature Editor; and Charlie Slack, Sports Editor.

Views on the benefits of a working bell system would be helpful. "When sitting in the cafeteria or walking in the halls," said Mr. Dunham, "it's a distraction to teachers and students."

The bells should be shut off until the system is fixed.

"This statement which you attribute to me implies that the school's curriculum is deficient if it does not use legal documents and food and medicine labels for teaching reading. My position is that the curriculum should be turned into training students to pass the tests."

Recently, she set the record straight as follows:

"The tests use legal documents and food and medicine labels for teaching reading. My position is that the curriculum should be turned into training students to pass the tests."

These skills should be taught well on the tests. I do not believe--so I would not have said--that these tests would show deficiencies in the school system.

construction of the tests because Education Testing Service which developed the tests Newton will use.

"The Editor-in-chief is elected by the entire Newtonite staff. Once elected, the Editor-in-chief chooses his four page editors and the Managing Editor."

The Newtonite, published ten times throughout the school year, is partially financed by Mr. Mechem's Principal Fund which comes from the city. Advertising also contributes to the support of the paper. Hopefully, advertising will increase with greater circulation of the paper.

The Newtonite is now distributed without charge to all Newton North High School Students.

Why the Newtonite's format has changed

The Newtonite has begun a new set of procedures which will maintain its publication schedule, but will cut back the number of pages to four and six instead of the usual eight.

Since the Newtonite no longer has faculty supervision in the printshop after hours, all school production must end at 2:30. This has a crippling effect on the paper, since work was previously done every afternoon for several hours.

In order to keep within the budget, the editors had to decide whether to cut back the frequency or the size of the paper.

It was felt that coming out every two weeks was crucial for keeping students up to date on important events.

In the four page issues, the paper will be evenly divided between news, news analysis, feature stories, and sports.

Betting the "Double", as it is called, entails picking the winners of both the first and second races. People may place as many bets as they wish on as many horses.

Betting may be done in two ways.

One can buy a racing form and program and look up the horses' past records (who each horse beat and lost to recently and by how much) weight times, recent

There are also trackmen in the racing form who pick a win, place and show horse for each race. If you fit all these together in the correct proportions, you're off.

"THOUGHTPRINTS"

"Thoughtprints" is a literary/art magazine consisting of student submissions. The three publications of this year were in the months of December, April, and May.

The staff is divided into two groups: art and literary. The Editor-in-Chief is Lois Graham. Key positions selected by Lois are Art Director, Leah Pressman; Literary Editor, Jessi Kavar; Production Manager, Barbara Gordon; Publicity Manager, Kellie McHugh; and Treasurer, Karen Zuffante.

The "Thoughtprints" staff meets weekly to review each submission to the magazine. Voted upon by the staff, the piece is published if accepted. If rejected, the piece is returned to the author or artist with an explanation for the rejection. A staff member meets with the author to offer constructive criticism. The piece may still be accepted with revision.

The technical production and publication are done in the school by the "Thoughtprints" staff. These operations include type-setting, paste-up, layout, and printing.

All students are encouraged to submit creative work to "Thoughtprints"!

BICYCLE CLUB

The Newton North Bicycle Club, with Presidents Jon Fasmen and Mark Trafton, held various bicycle trips throughout the Spring and Fall. The objective of the club was to work up to a hundred mile trip, starting from forty miles and gradually increasing the distance. The Bicycle Club held an overnight bicycle trip in the Spring. They also sponsored a tune-up clinic and an accessory swap. The Northeastern Bicycle association held races in which the Newton North Club members also participated after having their own time trials.

CHESS CLUB

The Chess Club consisted of twelve members and combined the intellects of participating sophomores, juniors and seniors. Regardless of Chess expertise, participants played in tournaments against one another as well as in informal competitions against other schools. Perry Orent presided over the club's operations along with Vice President Jerry Greenberg and Secretary-Treasurer Phillip Hark. Elections for next year's officers were held in May. The Chess Club met weekly during x-2 block.

THE OPERA CLUB

Although the Opera Club has been in existence at Newton North for over eleven years, this was the first year it had any members. Among the many productions staged were Orpheus in the Underwear, Carmingia, Fido and Anneus, and the 17th century Latin classic, Lucer et Vannitas, by Amando B. Rekonwith. "The year has been very productive," said club advisor D. Giovanni. "The performances were spectacular," added club president B. Hilda. "I only wish someone had come to see them." The summer production of the club will be The Hair Stylist of Seville.

FORENSICS SOCIETY

The NNHS Forensics Society (familiarly known as the Speech/Debate Club) took a giant step forward this year towards establishing Newton North as a power to be reckoned with in the Massachusetts Forensics League.

Under the leadership of coach Lori Borden, President Carey Goldberg and Vice-President Brenda Heller, the team succeeded in carrying off several trophies and awards from inter-league speech tournaments, including awards in such events as "Prose Reading," "Original Oratory," and "Extemporaneous Speaking." Due to the limitations of Work To Rule, the Newton North Debaters were unable to meet on a regular basis; however since most of them were Sophomores and Juniors, the Debate program had great potential for next year.

FOLK DANCE

The Folk Dance club met every x-1 block in the Little Theater. President Peter Atlas guided the eighteen regular members. Others drifted in for a special workshop. Events included a jitterbug workshop, a contra and square dance session, a performance at the Music Department's International Night as well as many simple international folk dance classes. Faculty advisors were Helen Saunders and Frank Spitzer. The club had expeditions to folk dances in the Boston-Cambridge area. The purpose of the club was to meet people and to have fun.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Maria Sirgo was the president of the Psychology Club. Events included a Christmas party for mentally retarded children, a trip to Equus and fund raising for the Cerebral Palsy telethon. There were fifteen regular members. Other activities were tutoring kids from North and volunteering at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital and at a school for retarded children. Faculty advisor was Roxanne Perlmutter.

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club members explored French culture while enjoying themselves. Co-Presidents Martine Culbertson, Nina Gleekman, and Secretary/Treasurer Constance Martin along with faculty advisor Mr. Carmine Trubiano and the rest of the club members went to French restaurants and movies, had French pastry sales and participated in an International Night. The club's major event was its spring trip to France. Club members sold candy and gum to raise money for their two week trip. Other events included a trip to Paragon Park, a bowl-a-thon, and a crêpe-eating contest.

GERMAN CLUB

The German Club was formed for students interested in going beyond the classroom in learning about Germany and its language. The club, with Gary Fai performing the presidential duties, began the year with a reception for foreign students in the International café. The club, under the guidance of faculty advisor Richard Clark, also had a cheese fondue night, a ski trip, a sail on a windjammer, and a picnic on George's Island. Other club leaders were Vice-President Nancy McGarry, Treasurer Martine Culbertson, and co-secretaries Nina Gleekman and Valerie Bloom.

ITALIAN CLUB

This year's Italian Club was advised by Maria Vallone. There were approximately 35 students in the club. Members enjoyed a trip to Italy touring internationally known cities such as Rome, Florence and Pisa. Stationary and Italian pastry sales contributed to the club's trip. Adviser Maria Vallone remarked, "The basic purpose of the Italian Club is to enhance the Italian culture and to familiarize students with the customs and traditions of contemporary Italy." A formal banquet at the end of the year commended the members for their hard work.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club immeasurably assisted Spanish-speaking students at Newton North. Students who had difficulty with the English language often looked to a Spanish Club member for aid. Members also extended their helping hands to Spanish students in the Boston schools. Club participants tutored English to the young students in the city. In the spring, the Spanish Club participated in a Latin-American dinner festival which students and community citizens attended.

RUSSIAN CLUB

Because of what we have marked as rising anti-Soviet sentiment among the Fascists and decadent New-Capitalists of the school, our subcommittee for the Education and Information of the Public has deemed it unwise to detail our activities at this time. The ministry of Education and Public Enlightenment of the Russian Club has determined that our activities are not meant for public knowledge. Those right-minded individuals truly interested in our philosophy, aims, and highly efficient methods of reaching those aims, may address enquiries to:

ORIENTAL CLUB

The Oriental Club is composed of students coming from Thailand, Korea, Hong Kong, Japan, Iran and China who join together to share their different cultural backgrounds. This year the Oriental Club, led by President C.J. Lee, opened the year with the Club's annual tea party. This was followed by several dinners in which the students demonstrated their culinary expertise. Various dishes, such as white vegetable with shrimp, fried scallops in soy sauce and baked Cee Bear were prepared and enjoyed by the members. After celebrating the first day of the Year of the Horse on February 7, the club participated in the International Night by demonstrating Oriental calligraphy and displaying cultural pieces of art.

OPEN CAMPUS HOMEROOM

The Open Campus homeroom planned and coordinated the activities of the Open Campus program. Its members were juniors and seniors who met once a week during homeroom period on Wednesdays and occasionally after school. During the meetings the club members discussed new ideas and received weekly assignments for carrying out the various programs, such as movies and speakers, which Open Campus offers.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Bringing the sophomore together into a more unified group has been a difficult job for Peter Shaver, this year's sophomore class president. "The transition into a new school should be smoother," says Shaver. He would like to see the sophomores become more involved in school activities. Shaver was quick to point out that the class needed money for next year and one of his major goals was to raise money. Shaver also worked to grant Open Campus rights to incoming sophomores during their first quarter at Newton North.

JUNIOR CLASS

Mike Darviche, the Junior Class President, felt his class had the most unity and participation seen in a Junior class in a long time. Believing that academically the Junior year is the toughest, he wanted to provide the Juniors with some diversions. Fund raising is very important to the class and they planned several events in which to raise money. This year the Junior class tried to bring itself together into one big family; Mike feels that they succeeded.

REX TRAILER CLUB

The Rex Trailer Club has North's few remaining cowboy worshippers as its members. When a "yee-hah" is heard along Main Street, it must be one of these rowdy boys, probably dressed in boots, Levi's, western shirts, vests, bandanas and that pride and joy — the cowboy hat. The group has considered selling toothpicks outside the cafeteria — regular and mint. The club's activities include shoot-outs, parties, and concerts. They're a wild bunch of boys rumored to ride horses on city streets, to hike in the middle of the winter and to drive small foreign sports cars with their cowboy hats on. Here's the club with Rex at the studio.

STAGE CREW

The Stage Crew is responsible for constructing and producing all technical aspects of theater production. It is an excellent opportunity to experiment in many theater crafts including lighting design, set construction, costuming and sound. This year's Stage Crew, under the direction of Bill Ames, contributed greatly to the creativity and originality displayed in all theater productions put on at Newton North. They are looking forward to an even more successful year next year.

EXPLORERS CLUB

The Newton North High School Explorers Club, with Presidents Jon Fasmen and Mark Trafton and Co-Chairperson Tim Cahill, is a joint outing club with Newton South High School. The club participated in various cross country ski trips, bicycle trips and hiking trips, visiting such places as Dartmouth, New Hampshire, Mt. Chicora and Miles Standish National Park. This, year the Explorers Club tried to bring the two high schools together by sponsoring various social activities as well as outdoor trips.

SKI CLUB

The Ski Club, advised by Stuart Rist, head of the Science Department at North, is a non-profit organization which provides an opportunity for skiing students. During the winter, the club goes on day, overnight and weekend trips to the mountains of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

This year the club, with Sarah Fisher as president, flew on an exciting trip to Lac de Tignes, France, where they tried their skills in the French Alps.

ORANGE BOOK

The Orange Book is a guide and handbook given to all incoming Newton North sophomores. It introduces students to the many and varied extracurricular activities such as le Cercle Francais, the marching band, and the Newtonite. It also outlines school policy and academic requirements, while giving a broad overview of the departments and houses. In total, the Orange Book serves as an introduction to Newton North High School.

ORANGE BROADCASTING

Orange Broadcasting, the Newton North Radio program "Tiger Talk" that's broadcasted every other Saturday on station WNTN, is run by a group of students. Led by the program director, senior Mike Smoller, Orange Broadcasting informs the public of school activities and community programs. It also has special features such as the covering of the mayoral campaigns.

S.F.A.

The Student-Faculty-Administration met on Wednesday mornings to discuss issues such as class-cutting policy and penalties against false alarms. Senior Greg Keenan and teacher John Ameroso were the co-chairmen of the caucus consisting of 5 teachers and 6 students, one housemaster and Principal Richard Mechem. Each member had one vote, with Mr. Mechem having absolute vetoing power. Both teachers and students had two alternates. One student out of the six was a sophomore, the other five being juniors and seniors.

The meetings were open to the whole school community and refreshments were served. Pending legislation dealt with curbing open campus abuse and requiring that counselors meet with all their students at least once a year.

BARRY HOUSE COUNCIL

Barry House Council Activities this year were both exciting and profitable. Under the enthusiastic leadership of co-presidents Joyce Cohen and Wendy Kaplan, the council raised a great deal of money for scholarships with activities like fried dough sales and ticket sales for Rocco and the Celestials.

Barry House Social Studies teacher Alan MacDougall played a big part in Barry fund raising, not only as Rocco but as the famous "Shrinking Man," who claimed he could lose 65 pounds between January and May. The money he helped to bring in was donated to the Phil Ochs Scholarship Fund, a scholarship awarded to a student with outstanding social studies ability and close involvement with the community.

With all the Sophomore and Junior support they've gotten this year, Council officers expect Barry activities to be equally if not more successful next year.

BEALS HOUSE COUNCIL

The Beals House Council had two main goals this year: to raise money for scholarships and to further house and community spirit.

The year began with a pre-Halloween pumpkin decorating contest and then moved into more serious, lucrative projects like dances. Beals House contributions to the school included several signs strategically placed to help visitors and students find the main office and the well-done mural on the Beals House commons room wall.

The money the Beals House Council earned from various activities was donated to the General Scholarship Fund and to the Beals House Scholarship Fund.

ADAMS HOUSE

The Adams House Council worked hard at raising money this year. They sponsored bake sales and other activities for the scholarship fund. Mary Anne Sheehan was the president. Other officers included: Helen Biciak, vice President; Patty Lavorgna, secretary; and Ed Bresnahan, treasurer. The council planned and executed "This is It," the annual talent show. Music events, dance exhibitions and comedy skits comprised this exciting variety show which was held in February. The council also fixed up the commons room and initiated school spirit.

Palmer House Council

According to President Jane Wolfson, the Palmer House Council had two main objectives this year: to raise money for a Senior Scholarship and to bring the House members closer to each other and to Newton North through Council activities. To supplement their weekly doughnut sales, the Council also sold candy and held breakfasts and bake sales. In the Spring they sponsored a dance and went on a picnic. Other officers were Vice-President Debbie Feinstein, Treasurer Maria Sirgo and Secretary Helene Rudolph. The faculty advisor was Mr. Michael Bower.

Riley House

Many sophomores joined the Riley House council this year. President Anna Mazzai, Vice President Jack Lane, Secretary Rachel Berg and Treasurer Peter Ezrin led the council in numerous exciting activities. The year started with elections for the Riley Mascot. Riley Raccoon won. The annual dance at Millis was well-attended. There were Thanksgiving and Christmas breakfasts. Santa Claus collected money for the Home for Little Wanderers. There was a service auction, an overnight ski trip, a spring dance and the year concluded with the annual Riley House picnic. The council also served doughnuts and coffee every Wednesday X-Block.

BACON HOUSE COUNCIL

This year the Bacon House Council concentrated on raising funds for scholarships and supporting an American Indian orphan. Community service projects included a "Toys for Tots" campaign, where the Council collected enough toys for a hundred children. During the year they held special breakfasts for sophomores and also instituted the Bobby Donahue Scholarship. Curtailed by work-to-rule, the Council missed their annual apple picking outing and an outdoor flea market. Other events, organized by President Anthony Pahigian, Vice-President Ellen Cutler and the Council members, included a Christmas party, Sophomore Orientation Day and a Dancathon. During the second semester the Council ran the School Store and held their elections for the following year.

Gil Boule, Louise McQuillan, Brian Kinsella, Laura Castagnino, Mary Beth Whitaker, Holly Laemmle.

The objective of the Senior Class Committee was to make life more enjoyable at Newton North. They sponsored such events as Fright Night, Quincy Market, and of course THE PROM. Money made by selling black and orange socks and holding breakfasts went to pay off expenses of the Prom and toward scholarships. Officers are elected the previous year. They are: President, Gilbert Boule; Vice President, Theodore Kelly; Secretary, Kathleen Greene; and Treasurer, Sarah Fisher.

RALLY COMMITTEE

A great part of the spirit and enthusiasm exhibited at all Newton athletic events must be attributed to the work of the Rally Committee. The President, Mary Beth Whitaker feels that the more participation by spectators the better the teams seem to play. With this in mind, the Rally Committee sponsored buses to every football game and conducted rallies every Friday afternoon to pep up the high school spirit. Motorcades, confetti, school songs and even candy for the athletes have all been organized by the Rally Committee. To express gratification to the athletes, the Rally Committee also sponsors a dinner at the end of each season. One wonders what the effect would be on our athletic achievement if school support didn't exist. Fortunately, the Rally Committee hopes to never find out.

DEAF COUNCIL

This year the deaf council had a student fund in order to supply coffee and doughnuts at meetings, to send cards to sick people and to provide money for the scholarship fund. Each student paid fifty cents every month to support the fund. There were informal meetings with coffee and doughnuts on the last day of each month and also several field trips, such as a camping trip in New Hampshire and a picnic at Lake Cochituate. The council also held many parties for its members.

SHAKESPEAREAN PLAYERS

This year the Shakespearean Players, a popular student-run drama club, performed The Crucible, The Festival of Plays and scenes from Shakespeare. The club, headed by seniors Michael Kharfen and Jane Fischberg, also held many informal play readings and sponsored trips to view different plays. Because the club's efforts to rehearse and practice this year were hampered by Work to Rule, it hopes to offer an even greater number of productions next year.

MODEL U.N.

This year about fifteen North students participated in a model United Nations, organized by Harvard University and held at the Sheraton Hotel in Boston. There the students met in forums with other students from all over the United States to discuss and make proposals on current issues. The North students were assigned to research the country of Niger and then to represent it at the forums. While learning how the real United Nations functions, the students also learned about the politics of many foreign countries. The head of North's representatives, Social Studies teacher Henry Bolter, hopes that the group will participate in model U.N.'s organized by other colleges next year. "Anyone who's interested can become a representative," he says.

Boys' Cross-Country

The boys' cross-country team entered the season with high expectations. As one of the perennial powerhouses they expected to be in contention for the Suburban League title. However, the loss of all-scholastics Duncan Scott and Garde Wells as well as inexperience hurt the Tigers. Juniors Dan Laredo and Paul Fisher consistently led the pack while juniors Peter Dennis, Jamie Forsythe, Bruce Sarota and senior Bill Peterson followed close behind.

The Tigers defeated their first four opponents, then lost three consecutive meets. The season concluded on a winning note as Newton North easily defeated Brookline to finish the season with a 5-3 record.

In post season competition the Tigers finished a respectable seventh place in the Class A meet. Dan Laredo ran the fastest time for Newton North as he finished fourth. Other varsity letter winners included co-captain Mitch Katzman, Lars Toomre, Tony Pahigian, Jack Lane, Jim Doona, Kenny Boudreau, and David Jones.

The 1977 season proved to be somewhat of a building year. Almost the entire team will be returning next year which should put the Tiger runners back on top of the Suburban League.

Girls' Cross Country

The Girls' Cross Country team, alias "the Coneheads," raced through their fourth season, placing third in the league, and qualifying for the state finals. Despite their third place league finish, the girls battled at every race and emerged with an admirable sixth in two record.

The team was exceptionally strong with tri-captains Lisa Chernin, Audrey Freudberg, and Julie Walker contributing to its unusually high morale.

The two leading runners, Rachel Berg and Martha Keenan, were supported by first-year runners Lorrie Kelley and Linda Hatch along with senior Heidi Maguire, juniors Cynthia Antonellis, Ilse Pistone, Margie Sheridan, and Sarah Metcalf.

Seniors Roberta Oliver, Laurie Schnee, and sophomore Gail McCulloch were hampered by injuries and unable to compete.

With the return of the strong under-class women runners and additional newcomers to Cross Country, the future of the team looks very promising.

Third row, coach Pam Jones, Jan Oleson, Marie Boule, Susan Forrest, Debbie Krieder, Maureen Fairbanks, Kathy Weber, Diana Proia, Anne Geagen, Linda Antonellis.

For the fifth consecutive year, the Newton North Field Hockey team captured the Surburban League championship. This was followed by their 'annual' trip to the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Their regular season record was 7-4-1, including five shutout victories. The Tigers bowed to Arlington in the first round of the tournament by a score of 2-0.

The team's success can be attributed to the outstanding effort, cooperation, team spirit, and fundamental skills which developed throughout the season. Guiding the girls in these areas was coach Pam Jones.

Leading the way for Coach Jones were captains Carol LeConti and Bootsie Schon. Returning veterans included Maureen Fairbanks and Deb Kreider. The varsity squad included seniors Carol Kennedy, Linda Antonellis, Martha Moy, juniors Liz Antonellis, Anne Geagan, Paula Buckley, and sophomores Jenny Kennan and Jackie Gladu.

Coming off an undefeated championship season, Newton North was definitely not the team Eastern Mass schoolboy football experts were predicting to burn up the rest of the league.

Coach Norm Walker, who, along with assistants Pat Coleman, Pete Capodilupo, and Bill Matyskiel, had coached his charges to the schoolboy Super Bowl was not prognosticating glory for this year's team either.

"We are just concerned with one game," Walker said. "The next one."

The reigning champs gave the fans and the experts plenty to talk about, though. Through the first half of the season the Tigers had won five straight contests. In that time they allowed only three touchdowns, outscoring their opponents 95-20, and had posted three shutouts (one half of the season's grand total.)

The squad was led by tri-captains Steve Fleming, Mike Poplack, and Rich Proia. Though plagued by injuries, Newton captains were hard to keep on the bench. Fleming, in his first season at quarterback, showed lots of poise and became more and more adept at the signal calling spot as the season wore on. Poplack fought off a tenacious ankle injury and kept the offensive line strong while Proia, after being sidelined the first half of the season, returned to lead Tigers back in high fashion.

The stingy Tiger defense (or, as Newton fans preferred: DEEEEEEEfense) was led by linemen Tom Parker, Joel Dennis, Phil Jennings, and Don Troy. The secondary proved themselves equally strong against the pass as well as the run. Tigers minding the secondary were Lee Waxman, Chris Flaherty, Kip Chinian, Jeff Jordan, Bruce Leonard, and Steve Burke.

The second half of the Tigers schedule didn't start so well. They were stunned by North Quincy 20-7. A 34-14 defeat at the hands of Waltham three weeks later put an end to the Tigers championship hopes.

In the Tiger's three victories in the second half of the season, they outscored their opponents 69-0.

The Orange and Black's explosive offense was led by captain Steve Fleming, the team's high scorer. One of the league's finest rushers, Steve was backed up by junior Charlie Slack — one of the areas best passers. Tiger completions went to ends Mike Roswtti, George Bresnahan, as well as Fleming, who snagged several of Slack's ariels for long yardage.

The offensive line, led by captain Poplack, with Jamie Boyle, Tom Parker, Nick Butera, and Fran Tarpey cleared the way for Tiger backs. Tony Santagati and Captain Proia (when healthy) did the bulk of the rushing. Fullback Shota Aki distinguished himself as an All League selection.

The season left Tiger fans and players with much to be proud of.

"It may not have been a perfect season," said one Tiger, "but it was close enough."

A combination of skill and effort led the Newton North Varsity soccer team to their best record in a decade. It also brought them as close as the division I semifinals before they were eliminated by Needham.

Prior to the season Coach Tom Williams was very optimistic about the 1977 varsity soccer team. "There is great depth at all positions," he said. He set some very high goals for the Tigers to meet. His goals included; going undefeated, winning the Suburban League Title, qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, scoring 50 or more goals and allowing only 8 goals during the season.

The Tigers opened up the season against Brockton and got the shock of their lives as they were defeated 4-2. They were determined to show everybody that this was only a fluke. They went out and dominated the Suburban League with 8 consecutive shutouts and 15 straight wins. They scored the most goals in the state, 70, while allowing only 8 goals. They finished the regular season with a stunning 15-1 record and won the Suburban League.

Some standouts for the Tigers included co-captains Tom Hagerstrom and Gordie Moore, Seniors Bobby Leblanc, Put Goodwin, Ben Levitan, and junior David Sheridan.

In the Eastern Mass. tournament Newton North was seeded third. First they defeated Winchester 4-0, then they proceeded to roar over Danvers by the score of 8-0. In the quarter-finals the Tigers disposed Braintree by the score of 3-2.

In the semifinals at Boston College the Tigers faced number 2 seeded Needham. Newton North was clearly the aggressor throughout the game, however, Needham scored very late in the game to win 1-0. Needham went on to be the Eastern Mass. champions.

Although the Tigers did not win the Eastern Mass. tournament they did achieve most of their goals. They also provided Newton fans with some of the most exciting soccer ever seen.

GIRLS' SOCCER

Two years of intense work brought the Girls' Soccer team a long way. They finished first in the Suburban League and fifth in the state. Only in their third season, the girls' outstanding record reflects the effort put into the young program.

Under the leadership of captains Shelly Hatton and Susan Murray, and coaches Barry 'Fuzzy' Howland and John Meyer, the girls have improved rapidly.

Soccer is a fast growing sport in the U.S. and with students from junior high schools actively participating, North's soccer program can only improve.

"It took a lot of hard work to get this far," said captain Hatton, "though I'm sure everyone on the team agrees that it was worth it."

GIRLS' SWIMMING

"Is this not OUR swimming pool . . .?"

This year the Girls' Swimming team could answer "Fred's" famous cheer with, "Yes, this is OUR swimming pool." After technical difficulties in past seasons, this year's edition of the team was finally able to return to the friendly confines of the Newton North pool. This year's squad included a large group of sophomores and new juniors, along with the remnants of last year's small, early morning team.

The season started with a promising victory over Weymouth South. The high point of this meet was the 100 yard breaststroke in which Newton underclasswomen swept the top three places.

In the next few meets the Tigers ran into several strong teams which possessed the depth and experience which North lacked. As the team passed the halfway point in the season, thanks to the strong coaching of Benn Merritt and Colleen Lynch, point totals and team spirit began to climb as the team picked up victories from Quincy, Weymouth North, and Boston Latin. The new team members did an outstanding job, picking up the additional points that the Tigers needed to win.

Tiger swimmers broke four records this season. Senior Sue Cullison broke the 500 yard freestyle record with a time of 6:23. Junior Leslie Swift's time of 2:18 established a new mark in the 200 yard freestyle. Sophomores Joanne Fay and Susan O'Halloran set records in the 100 yard breaststroke and 100 yard freestyle respectively.

Captain Kate Greene, senior Karen Miller, and diver Linda

Pohlman, along with junior Joanna Bonazoli, sophomores Ann Mulvaney, Emily White, and Janet Schnee all did outstanding jobs in netting points for the Tigers.

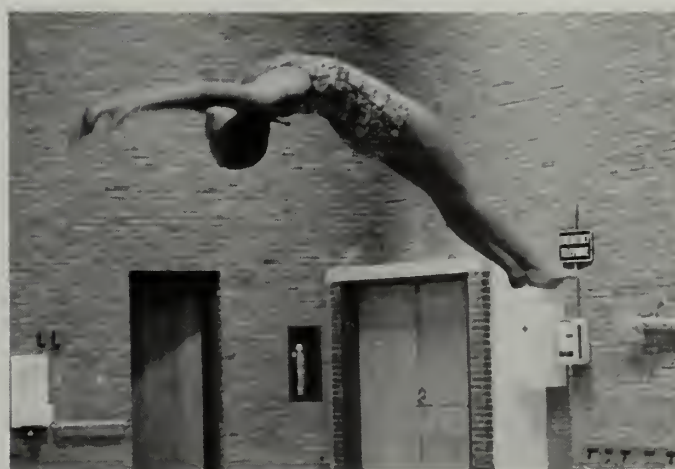

Despite the handicap of inexperience, the team entered fifteen swimmers in the Suburban League meet and six swimmers in Eastern Mass. State Championships. It was at the league meet where the team spirit and commitment was personified by Joanne Fay. Minutes after being 'touched-out' for the gold medal in the 100 yard breaststroke, Joanne forgot her own heartbreaking defeat and exhaustion and swam an excellent leg aiding the team of Kate Greene, Leslie Swift, and Susan O'Halloran in capturing the bronze medal.

"As our team spirit grew, we began to work together more and more," said captain Kate Greene. "I hope that the team spirit continues in the future and that everyone gets as much fun and satisfaction from the team as we did this year."

Volleyball

This year's Volleyball team surmounted many obstacles which had faced them in previous seasons and achieved many of the goals they had set for themselves. Under the guidance of coach Jay Cradle, the girls worked as a cohesive group and in the beginning of the season were unstoppable. They lost their opener to a tough Waltham team, but came back to defeat their next six opponents. Included in this string of victories was a triumph over Boxers of Brockton: a first in the history of volleyball at Newton North.

Aside from beating rivals such as Brockton, Brookline, and last year's State Champions, Cambridge Latin, the girls had other goals in mind. They wanted to obtain a berth in the State Tournament and make a reputation for the Newton North Volleyball program.

Seniors who have worked towards these goals since their sophomore year included co-captains Mary Beth Whitaker and Patty Connely, Ruth MacDonald, Susan Jacobson, Heidi Toyias, Beth Boats, and Suzanne Casey. Rounding out the squad were juniors Laura Flaherty and Betty Colantropo who will take on the job of leading next year's team.

The talent on the team this year was unmistakable; coach Cradle had more than she could handle. North's spiking attack was devastating. Susan Jacobson had the responsibility of setting up spikers Ruth MacDonald, Patty Conneely, Laura Flaherty, Heidi Toyias, Betty Colantropo, and Mary Beth Whitaker. The spikers and setter Jacobson worked well together, making a number of decisive spikes.

Highlighting the season were well executed games against Waltham, and the season's finale against North Quincy. In that final confrontation the girls in Orange and Black worked beautifully and had no trouble in blanking their opponent.

Looking back, captain Mary Beth Whitaker called it a, "fine season. Each girl improved and achieved a number of personal goals, while as a team we accomplished the ultimate feat of working as a unit and playing some fine volleyball.

"We posted a winning record and a similarly positive attitude. The season was a memorable one and we all look forward to the continued success of Newton volleyball teams of the future."

The girl's varsity Basketball team captured second place in the suburban league this year with an impressive 13-3 record, qualifying for the state tournament. The competition was tough, but the mighty tigers proved they could handle any team. The highlight of the season was the Tiger's devastating triumph over Cambridge Latin. It was the first time any team had defeated mighty Cambridge in seven years.

Captain Deb Kreider summed up the season by saying, "We worked well together. We looked for the pass instead of the shot first. Everyone had more experience; the incoming sophomores played like veterans."

Junior Laura Flaherty and sophomore Sherry Levin were among the leading scorers this season. Other team members who played important roles in the team's successful season were seniors Carol LeConti, Ruth MacDonald, Maureen Fairbanks, Heidi Toyias, juniors Anne Geagen, Lenor Ross and sophomores Judy Hinchey and Diana Proia.

In state tournament action, the Tigers defeated Madison Park 49-37, but lost to Norwood in the quarterfinals 47-37.

The predominately junior squad compiled an impressive 6-2 record during the 1977-78 season. The Tigers captured the Suburban League championship with ease. They went undefeated in the league for the first time in seven years.

Five team members qualified for the state individual championships. They were senior Karl Dabritz on the high bar, rings, and parallel bars, juniors Paul Anderson and James Antonellis in the floor exercises. Guy LeBlanc in vaulting and sophomore Brian Cove in all six events. Next year 11 varsity letter winners will be running to the squad.

The Newton North Girls' Gymnastic team has gracefully ended another fine season. This year they held a 10-0 record, 7-0 in the Suburban League. This league record indicates that the Tigers have swept the league for the second consecutive year, and that in 14 Suburban meets they have yet to be defeated or even seriously challenged. The team of 1978 is one of the strongest in the school's history. Their motto has been togetherness, and this has been stressed by Coach Pam Jones and Captains Lori Boskin and Mary Beth Whitaker. To attain their goal of states and keeping a close-knit team, a lot of hard work and a great deal of team support was needed. Everyone gave all they could of themselves, and therefore Coach Jones had another Championship Team on her hands. The ultimate reward of the team's discipline came in a rescheduled (after the storm) meet against Weymouth South. On this day the team total was 91.9 points, and this was enough to break the previous Newton record of 90.9 by one point. So this team now has the distinction of being credited with a school record.

The team had a number of shining individual stars, who always could be depended upon for a brilliant performance. The Tigers have junior Lee Pistone to thank again for all her help in the team's success. She again qualified for the State all-around, but along with all her accomplishments she is always ready to give up her time for her teammates. Lee was a fine example for all to follow, and she was always an important part of the team. Senior Paulette DuBois had an excellent season for the Tigers. She had the honor of being the number one vaulter in the entire Suburban League, and represented the high school at the States in that event. On the balance beam she was ranked second, and, for the most part was unbeatable. Lori Boskin always gave a strong performance in Floor Exercise, and could be depended upon in every meet. Along with senior Mary Beth Whitaker, who specialized in the balance beam, Lori served the team as co-captain. Senior Kinley Morril was another valuable asset to the team's progress. Without her strength on beam and bars some meets might have been more difficult to win. Finishing off the Tiger team were seniors Nicole Snow and Betsy Bassett. Juniors Betty Colantropo, Laura Rosenblatt and Darlyne Vona, and last but not least Susan O'Halloren, who was a State Qualifier on vaulting. Susan is a sophomore. These gymnasts could always be counted on for a super performance, and made up the strong depth Newton Gymnastics is famous for. This team worked together and accomplished a lot so they have much to be proud of. Next year should uphold the fine gymnastic tradition built up in Newton, but the team will greatly miss three year-seniors like Paulette DuBois, Lori Boskin, Mary Beth Whitaker, Kinley Morril, Nicole Snow and Betsy Bassett.

For the first time in many years, the Newton North hockey team was picked to be the top team in the Suburban League. It took them a few games to get things going. However, by the second half of the season they were where they belonged, in first place.

In the opening two games the Tigers looked very strong with convincing victories over Weymouth South and Brockton. In the next four games the Tigers managed only one win and two ties. With the entire season at stake the Newton North skaters fought back with seven victories and one tie. This winning streak allowed the Tigers to reclaim first place.

During the course of the season the team was led by coaches Don Crowley and Paul Buckley along with co-captains Felix LiDonni and Gordie Moore. Offensively the team was guided by the high scoring line of Tom Hagerstrom, Lee Waxman, and Glenn Buckley. Juniors Mickey DeMeo and Jimmy McHale were also key offensive threats for the Tigers.

Standouts on defense were Gordie Moore and junior Mike Thomas. Outstanding goaltending was contributed by goalies Felix LiDonni and Ricky Cohen.

Although several key players are graduating next year's team promises to be just as good as this year's. Ten varsity letter winners will be returning to next year's squad.

ORCHESIS

Orchesis, the school's modern dance group, is a noncompetitive varsity sport. The group consists of twenty girls and an advisor, Ms. Jay Cradle. It is a sport which involves much discipline and dedication. The girls practice every day after school during the spring season.

Although the girls do not compete, they do perform at Newton North one night in May and in many lecture demonstrations at high schools in eastern Massachusetts. On March 17, the girls perform at The Massachusetts Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation State Convention in Boxboro. But performance is not all that is achieved by Orchesis. The long, tedious hours of practice allow each girl to become aware of her body, and to train and develop its beauty by the art of dance.

Each girl choreographs her own dance in which she expresses herself, her ideas, and her beliefs. She then teaches her creation to the other members so they can perform it. This allows each girl to be creative, and to see herself through the way her dance is performed by others.

Orchesis is a group of artists who use their bodies as their tools. Their art is a reflection of their inner selves, their satisfaction comes from performing what they have created, and from allowing others to share that for which they have trained and worked so hard.

The team practiced 5 days a week instead of two as they had done in the past. They also had the advantage of shooting with new rifles. Coach John Meyers led this years squad.

The results of the 1977-78 season were all too familiar to Newton North trackmen. Their season consisted of seven relatively easy meets and one difficult meet. After an undefeated early part of the season the Tigers suffered their only defeat of the year to Brockton. North finished second behind the Boxers in the Suburban League standings.

This year's squad was under the direction of coaches Fred Frelow and Fred Yaitanes. Coach Frelow worked with sprint and middle distance men while coach Yaitanes worked with the field events and distance men.

Also leading the men were tri-captains Wes Harris, Joel Dennis, and Mark Ross. Wes was one of the state's finest 600 yard men. He picked up a key victory against Brockton. Joel was also one of the area's top men in his event. He broke the school and Suburban League record in the shot. Captain Ross distinguished himself as a versatile distance runner, one of the league's finest, specializing in the 1000 yard race.

Next year's team will be led by two of the state's top track performers: miler Dan Laredo and 300 yard man Mike Drew. The two juniors had outstanding seasons.

Newton's squad had many outstanding performances. Their field events were unmatched in the league. The high jump/hurdles crew was led by seniors Bill Rizzetto, Chris Cato, and Chris Flaherty. Junior George Bresnahan will be the sole returning performer in those events next year. The shot put squad, led by captain Dennis, was unstoppable. It included seniors Ralph Berry, and Rich Grossman and juniors George Bloom and Tom Berrigan.

Led by captain Ross, the distance crew had some fine performances. Bill Peterson, Mike Pendergast, Jim Doona, Lars Toomre, Ken Boudreau, and Wayne Merrit were the mainstays along with Ross in the 1000. Dan Laredo, Andy Epstein, Jerry Epstein, and Linus Vona led the mile crew. Herb Sidman, Peter Tang, and Paul Fischer handled the chores in the deuce for the team.

Newton also had its share of pure bred smoke in the sprints. The team of captain Harris and junior Tony Ricker was unstoppable in the 600 yard race. Juniors Mike Drew and Larry Dore were likewise a formidable duo in the 300. Senior Tony Santagatti and junior Glen Goldman were the Tigers performers in the 50 yard dash.

The Girls' Indoor Track Team ended its second season with a 3-3 record (the Brookline and Brockton meets were canceled due to snow). Coach Bob Glennon stated that he "was very pleased with the performances of the girls," and he had very good reason to be. With ten of the girls qualifying for the Suburban League and State Meets, coach Glennon had his share of quality talent to work with.

The ten qualifiers were led by Captain Lorrie Kelley in the 1000 yard run, Beth Boates, shot put; Debbie Carpenter, Holly Laemmle, and Beth Lizotte in the 300 yard run; Jenifer Jones and Lauren Jones in the 45 yard dash; Laura Laemmle, high jump; Janet Schnee, mile; and followed by first place meet finisher Co-Captain senior Linda Hath in the hurdles.

The Newton North swim team started off the season well as they won their first six meets of the season. The team's major problem throughout the season was inexperience. To compensate for lack of experience the Tigers started practice in September and continued through November into the season. Captain Paul Higgins had the team in the water at 7:00 each morning and the hard work obviously paid off. One of the team's strong points was its depth. In every event the Tigers had a good number of competent swimmers.

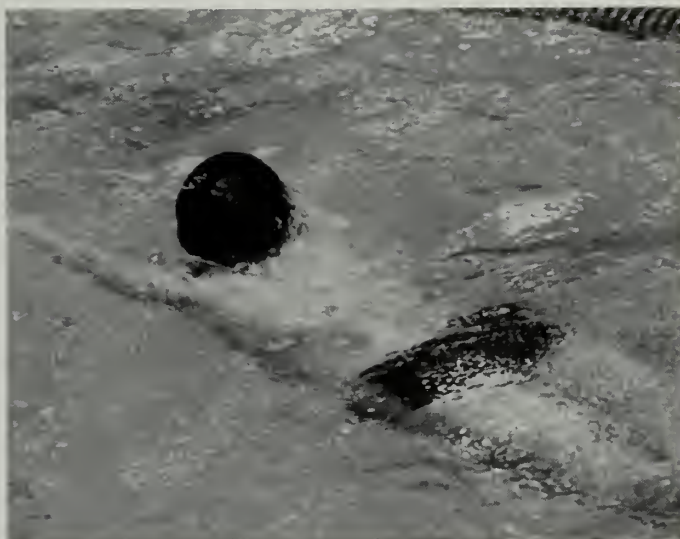

The team finished the season with a respectable 7-2 record. Four school records were also broken. The 200 yard medley relay team erased the old mark of 150.02 and brought it down to 149.9. The relay team consisted of seniors John Mulvaney, Paul Higgins, junior Peter Hawkins, and sophomore Alex Busansky. Diver Ed Fields topped his own personal best. He eclipsed his old record of 202.3 points with a new mark of 231.5 points. Senior John Mulvaney broke his old school record in the 100 yard backstroke. He brought his time from 103.4

down to 101.0. In the breaststroke, junior Peter Hawkins broke the school record of 108.4 with a time of 107.5.

WRESTLING

The 1977-78 wrestling team proved to be the best wrestling team Newton North has ever produced. Under the tutelage of coach Pat Coleman the Tigers finished the dual meet season with a 14-4 record. They won the league crown in a very balanced and competitive Suburban League, as they went undefeated with a 8-0 record. They then proceeded to win the division I central sectionals. The key to the success of the team was balance. The Newton North grapplers were strong at every weight class.

The team could have possibly gone undefeated had it not been for injuries. During almost the entire season the Tigers had to forfeit class because of sickness or injury. Finally in one of the last and most important meets of the season the Tigers entered a meet at full strength. Their opponent was league rival, Quincy, the team thought by many to be the best team in division I. If the Tigers were victorious they would clinch at least a tie for the Suburban league title.

100 pounder Ricky Sewall returned to the lineup after a long absence and won a major decision, 10-2. Dave Costanzo at 107 and Dave Gasdia at 114 both lost tough decisions. Tri-captain Kevin Bengston then defeated one of the premier wrestlers in the state at the 121 lb. weight class as he totally dominated his opponent 14-2. Jon Larkin lost, the Kim brothers; captain Rich at 134 and Eddie at 140 tied their opponents. Harry Shainian won a decision followed by E.A. Morgans dramatic pin at 157. Senior Steve Krutt then widened the lead with a clutch win at the 169 lb. weight class. Captain Tom Parker clinched the victory with a pin. Harold Cutler wrestled in place of Jeff Parker at heavyweight and was defeated. When the smoke had cleared the Tigers were victorious 31-21.

In the Needham X-Mass tournament 7 Newton North wrestlers won trophies. Kevin Bengston won 1st place. Ed Kim, E.A.

Morgan, Steven Krutt, and Harold Cutler finished second in their weight classes. Dave Costanzo and Harry Shainian finished third.

The Tigers won the division I central sectionals. In the process they qualified 9 members for the division I state championships in Springfield. Tom Parker was Newton's only sectional champ. Ricky Sewall, Kevin Bengston, Harry Shainian and E.A. Morgan won second place metals. Ed Kim and Steve Krutt came in 3rd place. Dave Costanzo and Dave Gasdia finished fourth. Newton qualified more wrestlers than any other team in the section. Rich Kim and Jeff Parker finished fifth in their weight classes and went to the state tournament as alternates.

Cheerleaders

Marching Band

The beat of the 'Big N Tiger Marching Band' goes on. This courageous group of musicians marched and played at all Newton North football games. The Band played in all sorts of inclement weather — even when visiting bands refused to perform.

Under the direction of maestro Tom Leonard, with drillmasters Vikki Davis and Amy Davidson, and announcers Phil Schiller and Steve Siagel, the Band kept up its reputation of providing unique halftime entertainment.

The dedication shown by the Band was best exemplified by senior class President (and trombonist) Gil Boule. At Newton's game in the Eastern Mass. Soccer semi-finals, Gil acted as director, conductor, and drillmaster for nine other musicians who made up the 'Little N Tiger Marching Band.'

In the words of one member of the soccer team, "Now that's what I call 'school spirit.'"

Prep, Slump, or Tweed?

Were you a prep, tweed, greaser or funk during your NNHS years? The way you dress can distinguish you from other kids and classify you as being a groupie or an individual.

Preps are the easiest to distinguish: straight-leg corduroys or levis, turtlenecks with the turtle straight up, crew neck Fair Isle or solid-colored sweaters, docksiders, and for the girls a hair ribbon. These students generally buy their clothes at The Lodge or order from L.L. Bean. Prep locations: The library steps, the "Silent section," the closed off room in the cafeteria.

Tweeds (or straights, as they may be called) are more difficult to find. Outfits consist of tweed skirts or slacks in gray, man-tailored shirts, hacking jackets and boots or high-heeled shoes. Some tweeds carry walking sticks. Girls wear their hair in chignons; guys comb theirs perfectly straight. The strain of wearing tweedy clothes is so great that many straights will appear the day after this perfect attire in fatigue pants and their younger brother's camp T-shirt. Tweeds tend to scatter but can always be found during Open Campus movies such as "Romeo and Juliet" (never Three Stooges films).

Greasers have the look. Greased hair, leather jackets, tight jeans and boots with a white T-shirt underneath — they have the "Happy Days" coolness. They aren't frightened of anything or anyone. Greasers hang out on Lowell Ave. and in front of Barry House.

Funks are definitely among the most interesting. Try a gunny sack lace dress, chinese velvet slippers, a gold necklace, and a picture hat. Or for a guy, pin striped pants and vest, suede shoes, a neutral-colored shirt, jazzy tie and the jacket slung over the right shoulder (Books are tucked under the left.). It takes a lot of guts to dress like this but the results are worth it.

There are also many nondescript slumps, wearing pants and shirts without bothering to coordinate them. The most extreme cases are recognized by the way people who look at them wince and whisper, "He must have gotten dressed in a very dark room." Though slumps are often very tacky they are definitely the most comfortable and least self-conscious of the groups.

Most people are a combination of all groups, mixing and matching (or mismatching) according to their moods in the morning and the clean clothes left in their closets. Although it may be simple and convenient to classify people according to the clothes they wear, it's important to remember that what a person wears usually reflects no more than his taste in clothes, and may reveal nothing about the personality beneath. Remember, a slump may be a tweed in disguise, and a leather jacket may have a silver lining.

HOW DID YOU GROW?

Some Seniors, asked these questions as guidelines, were given the chance to try to sum up their entire High School experience in a few short sentences. They replied:

"I'm so much more confident now. When I first came in I didn't know what was going on, what to expect. I'm not sure I have really found myself yet, but at least I feel like I'm on the right road."

"I understand and value education a lot more now than I did in 10th grade. I have a much stronger fear of institutions because I realize some of the hideous things they can do, but I also realize now that all an institution is is a bunch of people stuck together, and the only way to get an education is to keep in mind when you're facing that heinous and execrable brick blob is that you're using it and it's not using you."

"I've learned to deal with a lot of people, with being one of a herd. I've found ways to express myself so that I don't feel lost. I have a deep respect for Newton North, not because it's such a great institution but because it accomplishes what it should accomplish in a very positive way. Three years is enough, even when they're good years."

"In all the ways I've grown — socially, artistically, emotionally — I seem to have grown in spite of school instead of because of it."

"From 10th to 12th grade the main thing I learned was how to skip homeroom more successfully."

"I learned all you have to do in order to get something done in an educational system is to bring your parents to school."

"At first it was a challenge to work myself into the system."

Then, for a while, it was my place, I knew all the ins and outs, how to break rules without getting into trouble, how to do almost exactly what I wanted without really seeming to. And, finally, it has all become a burden — the whole framework is so limiting and it seems like there are so many better things I could be doing with my time. I don't want to fiddle around with their framework anymore, I just want out!"

"I think at North I've just been introduced to a lot of different ideas and people that I'd never been confronted with before. The experience of learning all these new things just opened my mind and made me more adaptable. It's given me a broader background."

"The major thing I've learned in High School is that nothing I do in High School matters at all. But if I had it to do all over again I probably wouldn't have done it any differently. I realize that High School is the last time you can do whatever you please — or rather, not do whatever you please, and still get away with it."

FROM SOPHOMORE TO SENIOR

Through the eyes of an incoming Newton North High School sophomore, the transition from junior high to high school presents a mystical challenge. Look at all the obstacles you're concerned about when you enter NNHS. There are three thousand students, a minor fraction with whom you are already acquainted! In addition you are confronted with free time which adults interpret as a test for student discipline or initiative taken toward participation in extracurricular activities.

The primary concern mystifying the NNHS rookie is how to mingle into the ranks of a mere three thousand student community. Sure, you always belong to one of the six color-coded houses within the school, but not all five hours of classes are spent in that one house. For example, if you are eating with one of your new friends in the cafeteria and a flying fruit cup fantasia lands on your appetizing mass-produced pizza, you may be grateful for the new acquaintance but may also question the hopes of enjoying new experiences.

If you encounter trouble meeting people in the cafeteria, try Main Street, NNHS. You are bound to bump into new friends on the way to class, literally speaking. If you are comfortable on Main Street, you most likely feel at home in NNHS. The corridors seem to be an endless "rush hour" to class. You may believe that all three thousand students are walking your direction at one particular moment.

The crowded hallways inhibit student traffic, creating one more problem. Tardiness to class is the subject most emphasized and reemphasized in classroom lectures. Yes, so many "tardies" equal a "cut" and so many "cuts" result in parental contact. However if you yearn to participate in extra curricular activities, you may join one of the governing forces of NNHS, namely the SFA (Student Faculty Administration board). Being a member of the SFA may enable you to influence a decision toward extending the five minute break between classes to a ten minute break, thus allowing more time to battle the elements of corridor traffic.

If you are not physically drained from your sophomore year, you may stick around for your junior year. Now don't misinterpret that. Of course the junior year is enjoyable, particularly as many students anticipate P.S.A.T. exams in the spring! Face Reality! At the ripe age of 16, emotional fatigue could result from matters more significant than worrying how a three-hour national exam might affect your entire college and professional career.

School ventilation is a prime concern. Each day, students ask one another whether school will be cancelled for the following day; not from the snow outside but from the asbestos inside. Perhaps the tension from a final exam given on a hot spring day may be eased by an explosion of the cooler in the back of the room. Such are the conditions through which you achieve your junior year grades. These grades are the most significant on the high school transcript. However there is no space allotted on the transcript to explain the learning atmosphere in NNHS, an institution surely conducive to high-grade achievement.

During the first semester of your senior year there is still some stimulation which maintains a desire within students to work. The stimulative forces are college applications and job opportunities. The second semester is a graduation party for many students. The work load is decreased, or so it appears, as students consider themselves graduated in January.

The Senior year enable you to reflect on your secondary school education. Feelings of both dissatisfaction and praise concerning NNHS are sensed by students. Most importantly, though, the positive reflections upon the high school experience may illuminate the successful emergence of Newton graduates toward a promising future.

The Three Year Mirage

Dedicated To Doug Harper

"Wow! So this is high school!" thought Charley. He had sneaked away from his stuffy, small Junior high school to visit the high school where he would go next year. It was huge.

He was looking down now from the top of the stadium at the ominous building and the crowd milling and clustering on the pavilion. Two of his friends from ninth grade stood beside him.

"What do you think it'll be like?" asked Phil. Charley didn't turn to answer him. He was looking over the school with much the same sentiment that permeates those movies about New York in which the hero stands on the roof of a building with a girl at dusk and says: "One day this will all be ours . . ."

On the first day of school Charley strutted on to Main Street, his boots freshly polished, a creaseless leather jacket (acquired with his summer's savings as a social prerequisite to high school life) pronouncing his evolving manhood. Main Street was like one long stage with a thousand actors playing at once. He felt self conscious and embarrassed by the countless eyes that followed him down the hall, and wished himself in the company of someone more conspicuous. You had to be glamorous here, he thought. Image! A lean, confident senior walked by, laughing with a Farrah Fawcett blond. They walked with a bouncing oblivious air past a pack of frightened sophomores led by a teacher, who they waved to, and then they vanished into a doorway, leaving a wake of impressed stares that splashed to the floor behind them.

"Who was that?" he asked a girl on the library steps.

"Uh." She looked past him into the crowd.

"What?" (She walked away.)

He went into the maze of hallways off Main Street. There were more pretty girls there than he had ever seen before, running from room to room trying to find their classes. People stopped him at every corner to ask where their rooms were. He didn't know, and he said so, but inwardly he congratulated himself that he looked like he knew what he was doing. That was a start.

When he found a stairway he went down to the basement and headed toward what should have been the cafeteria. The labyrinthian white halls soon had him reeling and confused, and huge hard-faced young men passed him rapidly, grunting quickly when he asked for directions. He was hungry and tired, and the tortuous blank halls brought him several times to intersections redolent of hotdogs and ketchup. He ran in the direction of the smell only to find himself in some foul hot room full of machinery and grease. He walked back down the strange halls to an intersection where he knew he had smelled food before. Now he heard a violent grinding noise from a nearby door, but the only odor was that of his polished boots. He looked in the narrow window on the door but there was no one within view. He walked around a corner and came to a dirty black steel door. Hah! He could smell food behind it. He felt like some kind of subterranean creature drawn by crumbs from his lair. He tried the door. It was locked. As he turned around he felt a strong hand close suddenly on his arm.

"You!"

It was a teacher.

"You a sophomore?"

"Yeah."

"Get to study hall. You know you aren't supposed to be wandering around loose."

"Um . . ."

"C'mere. What house are you in? Beals? OK. I'll take you up to the office. What's yer name?"

He was silent.

He felt himself propelled toward a stairway, up it, across Main Street, and into an office. He was thrown in the door.

"I found this kid downstairs by the music rooms. He's supposed to be in study hall." The teacher left.

The secretary looked up at him appraisingly.

"What are you, a sophomore?" He nodded.

"What house?"

"Beals" he said.

"What lunch?"

"Excuse me?"

"I said WHAT LUNCH?"

"Oh. I don't know."

"What do you mean, you don't know? This'll wreck your whole computer file. Here, fill out this form and we'll find out what you did wrong."

"I didn't do anything."

"Yes you did, you little . . ."

"Damn it, I didn't! I'm hungry and I'm going to lunch."

"Sit down! Look, fill out that form or I'll have to report you for skipping study hall."

"Jesus, I don't even know what study hall is."

"Are you here on chapter 716?"

"No."

"What's your name?"

"Charley Barron."

"OK." She looked at a list of names, wrote his at the bottom of it, and said, "Here, go to this room." She handed him a slip of paper with a four digit number on it.

"But I haven't eaten yet."

"How can you eat if you don't know what lunch you have? You are missing gym now and you've already messed up your school file. If you skip Gym you could be suspended."

He walked out; the secretary's exasperated sigh rushed out after him from the closing office door. A dark little voice from a row of lockers said, "Get a job, Freak." His eyes were moist as he walked out of the building.

Three years later he wondered how he had made it through that first year. He leaned back on a couch in one of the commons rooms. A girl from the art room passed by and waved. Funny, he thought, how people here get departmentalized. There were people who belonged to certain sections or rooms of the building. You could always count on finding them at Stair four or in the auditorium, in the ceramics room or the woodshop. They all found a place to fit their personalities, like books on a shelf. For easy reference . . . he wondered how he was referenced in the minds of his friends.

Had he learned anything the whole time he had been here? Yes. He'd had to think that out when he applied to colleges. They all wanted to know what his most rewarding academic experience had been in high school. What had he learned? He had felt like he was cheating at a game of poker when he'd listed off the names of his favorite classes. That wasn't what it had been about at all. Hell, if he had really concentrated, he could have learned all those facts and read all those books in less than a year.

He had gotten into Columbia, and gone down to New York fretting on the train about the interview there. Would they reject him at the last minute? No. He reflected on how he had felt when he first saw the university: frightened, young, unprepared. "It's the real world," he remembered somebody saying.

He got up and walked out on Main Street. The real world . . . It echoed in his head. He thought back to when he'd first seen the high school. It was all his now, and it wouldn't be next fall. It would be somebody else's crowd, somebody else's face. He knew the rhythm of the class changes, the clockwork of the throng's flow. It all spun away and shrunk before him now. In September he wouldn't know this school at all.

He remembered his elation when he'd stepped off the stage after his only play. He had caught Cathy up in his arms and spent the night with her. He grinned and watched the tilled floor fall back behind his feet. That was over now. He'd been terrified when he had read somewhere that very likely it would be a moment like that one, stepping off the stage, that he would remember as the emotional peak of his life. "A high school play," he had thought, "how disillusioning!" If there was no more excitement to life than that, what was it worth? Still, that had been a happy time . . . maybe it was enough.

If he had really learned anything, he reflected, it was probably that the whole glamorous illusion he'd brought with him from childhood didn't exist. One of his teachers had seen it and called it a chip on his shoulder. He wondered whether the teacher had been accurate in calling it that. He had learned how to angle through an administration and a social crowd, he had learned how to impress some people. He'd even learned how to impress himself, but that usually didn't last.

There were good friends, and half-friends, and there were those nervous studious faces that scurried into the library; there were studied faces, like his own, calculated to be something other than they were. The faces he liked best of all were those bursting into broad smiles of enjoyment, so that the lines radiated from their eyes and gave off little calories . . . you could always count on seeing one or two in a day here, he thought, because the crowd was so big that someone in it was bound to be happy. There! There was one now! He watched her rippling into the throng. He stopped, glancing around the hall. A few clusters of gossipers hung by the walls and the first trickle of students was already on Main St., indicating that classes were about to change.

"Out, out, brief candle," he cried suddenly, mounting the library steps with a dramatic flourish.

"Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage
And then is heard no more. It is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing."

Main Street's clamor died. A few fitters were choked back among a cluster of jocks and pink-sweatered girls. The building's air conditioning throbbed audibly through the frozen hall. Someone clapped three times and stopped, feeling hard eyes turn in deadpan faces.

Charley walked down the steps and through the crowd. The door was open; it was a warm afternoon. Charley laughed. The percussive murmurs and pronouncements that followed him out the door were applause.

Work to Rule

Members of the Newton Teacher's Association (NTA) worked to rule for six months of the past school year. NTA President Mr. Richard Adams said that their action was a reaction to the Newton School Committee's unsatisfactory contract offers. The teachers' work to rule severely limited all extra-curricular activities for which the faculty advisor was not compensated.

On September 8, 1977 the NTA voted by an overwhelming majority to enact a work to rule policy. Under this plan, teachers were to arrive at school no earlier than 7:55 a.m. and leave the building in the afternoon no later than 2:50 p.m. They were not allowed to attend any club meetings as faculty advisors unless they were paid for their time. According to the policy, club meetings and class committee meetings were both banned during X blocks.

The purpose of the NTA's work to rule action was to put pressure on the School Committee from the community as well as from within the School Department. According to Mr. Adams, the work to rule policy accomplished exactly this. Students were becoming frustrated by the work slowdown and were complaining to their parents. The parents were in turn putting outside pressure on the School Committee, he said. But, former School Committee chairman Mr. Alvin Mandell said, "The NTA's work to rule has had the exact opposite effect of what they intended. A number of private citizens have told me that they have been incensed by the teachers' action."

The NTA rejected the School Committee's proposed three-year contract on Monday, December 4, by a vote of 482-45. 74 percent of the NTA members who were eligible to vote did so.

The following were the terms of the proposed contract according to the NTA's Personnel Policies Committee. The salary schedule would be increased by 4 percent retroactive to September 1, 1977. The schedule would be increased to 5 percent over the 1976-1977 schedule February 1, 1978, effective September 1, 1978.

For the third year beginning September, 1979 the percentage increase would be equivalent to the national cost of living index, but the increase would be no less than 4 percent and no greater than 6 percent. Learning disabilities teachers would receive the same salary increase as the regular classroom teachers. Secondary Physical Education teachers would receive the full coaching stipend for each season coached. Their salary percentage increase would be the same as the teachers' for two full years. During one of the years there would be no increase.

Part-time teachers would be on the same salary schedule as full-time teachers. If part-time teachers worked more than half-time, they would advance by full steps on the salary schedule. Otherwise, they would advance by half-steps. Teachers requesting maternity leave would have the remainder of the school year off. If the teacher made the request after April 15, then she would get the remainder of that year and all of the next year off. The teacher could notify the School Committee of her intention to return in September. However, by July 1 the School Committee still had the right to determine whether a teacher may return early.

The following clause would be added to the present provisions for the hiring of substitute teachers: "The School Committee shall not be required to provide substitute teachers for first-day absences at the senior high schools."

The two major concerns that the teachers expressed about the proposed contract were about the substitute teacher clause and the reduction in force specifications. Many teachers felt that substitute teachers were a vital asset to North and wanted them to be hired whenever a teacher was absent, according to Mr. Adams.

All club activities and academic field trips held outside of school hours were forced to be cancelled on account of work to rule. Two house council sponsored dances and two senior class sponsored dances which were scheduled in the fall had to be cancelled.

The NTA's work to rule policy produced an atmosphere at North which at times was not conducive to learning. For instance, the Halloween Dance sponsored by the Senior Class Committee was cancelled two weeks before it was scheduled. This upset many students who had helped to organize the annual event. This cancellation eliminated an important social event which builds school spirit. Fortunately the Senior Class was able to organize a rock concert and some school dances.

Work to rule crippled the activities of North's annex, Murray Road, which are taught by teachers who aren't paid, were the Murray Road curriculum because students choose and design their own courses. These meetings, which take place outside of school hours, were banned. Night courses at Murray Road which are taught by teachers who aren't paid were also not allowed to be held because of the work to rule policy. Teachers at Newton South refused to write any form of college recommendations for their students at one point during the negotiations.

Fact finder Mr. Edward Pinkus was called in to aid negotiations between the School Committee and the NTA.

The NTA finally adopted a three-year contract proposed by the newly elected School Committee board on Thursday, February 16, by a vote of 350-151. 70 percent of eligible NTA members voted in this election. The new contract provided for a 5 percent pay increment for the next two years and between 4½ and 5½ percent pay increase the third year. The new contract also provided substitute teachers every day that a teacher is absent. The reduction in force language has been sufficiently improved, according to Mr. Adams. The NTA Negotiations Hot Line called for an immediate termination of the work to rule policy since it was a protest to the insufficient contract offers. As soon as work to rule ended, teachers and students eagerly resumed their normal activities.

One of the most talked about books during our high school years was Ordinary People by Judith Guest.

It tells the story of a 17-year old boy who has attempted to commit suicide. He comes home after eight months in a mental institution, and has to begin the slow readjustment to his friends and family.

Conrad, the boy, had been a straight-A student, swim team member, and all-around achiever. When his brother drowned in a sailing accident, Conrad blamed himself for not drowning instead. He had always pushed himself to measure up to his idolized older brother. His own basic feelings of insecurity surfaced and tormented him until he decided that he no longer wished to live. His father, Calvin, found him in the bathroom, where he was lying in a pool of blood from his slit wrists, and saved him. From this point, Conrad has to begin to redefine his values.

The family (Conrad, Calvin, and Beth, the mother) are dismayed at this departure from their status as "ordinary people." They had hoped to remain a typical middle-class, moderately happy, suburban family; and suddenly they find themselves shattered by a very typical unordinary attempt at suicide. One of the book's central questions is introduced here: Can one be "ordinary" and still have serious problems! For Judith Guest there is no simple meaning for the word "ordinary." She portrays typical teenage/human dilemmas — Will Conrad sleep with his girlfriend, Will Calvin and Beth separate, Will Conrad make it back into his former way of life — in such a way that each reader can see part of himself in the characters and their problems.

Ordinary People is occasionally unrealistic. Beth is a cold, callous woman with no love for anyone but herself. She doesn't want to worry about Conrad or her bewildered, loving husband. The characterization of Beth is so extreme that it is unbelievable. Beth is not ready to give any part of herself to help her son or save her marriage. Guest never helps the reader understand why Beth is like this — what events in her past have shaped her into what she is now.

The ending of Ordinary People is melodramatic, yet it is the kind of melodrama that occurs in ordinary life. This book hits a nerve that most people try to keep covered. No matter how stable and ordinary our lives may seem, we are all vulnerable to the chance circumstances that could send our ordinary little lives crashing into ruins around us.

The Bush at Newton North

Bush is defined as: Slang, short for bush league, the opposite of classy. North students have their own particular brand of bush. For instance:

Wearing shorts to school
Leathers in 90 degree weather
Sitting on the floor during lunch
People who cling to each other in the halls
Going to school on snow days
Drag racing on Lowell and Elm
Mooning in school bus windows
Sitting on the library steps
Sitting in locker rows
Seniors who don't slump
Being caught picking your nose
Farah Fawcett hairdos
Not being able to say a whole sentence without swearing
Getting kicked out of the Silent Section
Wearing shoes you can't walk in Getting cut slips
Parading around in drag on Halloween
Singing "100 bottles of Beer on the Wall" on a field trip bus
Chewing gum like a cow
Leaning over bannisters and spitting on people's heads
Wearing a calculator strapped to your belt
Pretending that you're stoned out of your mind when you're not.

Loudly rating girls 1-10 as they walk by

Having to sit on pillows to drive

Saying:

"But what's wrong with caf food?"

"Whuju get?" after a test

"Groovy!"

"Ciao!"

"Laytah!"

"It's been real . . ."

Musical Notes

The music scene for the class of '78 had few memorable events. In fact there were quite a few letdowns; no Beatles reunion, no new Bruce Springsteen album, the death of Elvis and the ever-increasing record prices left us disappointed.

Many of the artists who emerged as our overall favorites seemed to have one thing in common: they had all been making good music for several years without getting much attention until the past three years. Fleetwood Mac, George Benson, Boz Scaggs, Steely Dan, Bob Seger, and The Steve Miller Band had been with us a long time (some since the Fifties and Sixties) but did not receive their well-deserved popularity and appreciation until our high school years.

In the Seventies, pop music threw down the signs it carried during the turbulent Sixties, gave up its protests, and put on its dancing shoes. The major trend during our high school years was Disco and Funk, uptempo dancing music. The mid and late Seventies were a time for personal expression in music, for escaping from pressures and looking for a simple good time. Disco music, which started out as a commercialized fad, gained integrity from the stylish innovations of such artists as Earth, Wind, and Fire, The Bee Gees, Donna Summer, and the Average White Band. While dancing music was in, Punk Rock or "New Wave" music never really made it. There is one word that describes the music we listened to, and that is "diverse." Besides all the different modes of Pop and Rock it listened to, the class of 1978 was well versed in the classical, jazz, and folk idioms. Class taste included all different types of music, old and new.

The music we listened to. Whether it was Disco or Classical, it will remain forever associated in our minds with the Saturday nights out, cafeteria lunches, and noisy parties of our high school years.

OUR LEGACY: COURSE RECOMMENDATIONS

The Social Studies department has omitted a very important area of study in its curriculum, an area necessary to every normal, procrastinating teenager. This school needs a course which teaches students different excuses — ranging from the modern "left notebook in school" to the classic "felt ill" — which can be employed any time an assignment just isn't there when the teacher asks for it. A course such as this would never be under-enrolled, and would give students added knowledge that would put them one step ahead in the academic world.

The Physical Education department is thought to be very thorough in the courses it offers; courses which strengthen your arms, legs, stomach, shoulders, and other parts of your body. But there is no course that strengthens your fingers, the part of your body you use far more than any other. There should be a course on bottle-cap shooting. The student would be strengthening his fingers while doing something both fun and likely to prove profitable in the near future.

Our language department offers courses in French, Spanish, Italian, Russian, German and Latin, but fails to offer a language which students have searched for many times at the high school.

There are no words in the English language which can describe the lunch-time scene in the cafeteria. Many times I have tried to formulate words to accurately depict the sight of garbage spilling over table tops or spaghetti slithering down the sides of barrels, but time and time again I find myself at a loss for words. Somewhere, there must be a language that contains the vocabulary needed to describe our eating place. It is the duty of our Language department to find it, and then teach it to the open-mouthed scholars of Newton North High School.

The Science department is depriving our students of some very important knowledge — knowledge to which every student in this building is entitled. A course on the effect of asbestos fibers on the human body would be quite a popular course at Newton North. Many of us would love to know exactly how the asbestos enters our bodies and slowly beings to kill us. It's reported to be a very stimulating subject. But maybe we should wait another decade to begin this course, because then the teachers will be able to use some real live (or dead) specimens from the school who are perfect examples of the subject matter.

For any student who likes to use the library the way it's meant to be used (for talking, of course), a course on library conversational techniques would be very attractive. A course stressing the different voice tones which are hardly audible from a distance but are easily interpreted by your neighbor is a necessity for any library regular. The English Department should offer such a course to accomodate this great number of students who are continuously having their conversations interrupted (and sometimes ended) by "sound-sensitive" librarians.

Newton North High School offers a great array of courses; the 93 pages of its famed "Opportunities in Secondary Education" contain virtually all the skills most high schoolers wish to possess. Still, certain skills that are necessities in today's world remain untaught.
